There is an error in the premises and the whole logic that leads a ehurch into those perplexities is vicious, But it is an error of all times and ages. The churches have taken an active part in regulating the affairs of the world, and the followers of the Prince of Peace have been eager to press on embattled hosts to slaughter. We do not know that they are not Christians, We once heard an old deacou say that Peter was a good man when he denied his Master; "but," suid he, with great emphasis, "his denial of his Master was no part of his goodness.' So these churches may be composed of good people; but their political preaching aud praying und exhorting is no part of their goodness or Christiauity. At a meeting of merchants held in Bos on, last week, Mr. Wm. King, who owns a plantation in the northern part of Georlation to the negroes in that State, of Protest Against Mustering Out which the following are extracts:

which the following are extracts:

The cultivation of cotton required a continuous labor of twelve months, and rice of nlne months. A single month of neglect, particularly in Angost, will destroy the cotton crop, and so of rice in September. How to seeme that certainty of labor was his maln object now. No man would plant who could not be sure of laborers all the year. The newspapers vary in their accounts of the negro and his canditton, the opposite sides being exaggerated, and neither being strictly true. One paper speaks in the highest terms of the negroes and their condition; another the opposite; both are prejudiced. Many the negroes and their condition; another the opposite; both are prejudiced. Many negroes were receiving rations, and expected them to continue. The negroes needed kind connsel and control, and they were a race particularly open to the influence of kindness. Whenever the head of a plantation left, the negroes had left of plantation for any the result was the death of many. His plantation had been protected by General Sherman, and his two hundred and twenty negroes remained, and of those but five died up to July two hundred and twenty negroes remained, and of those but five died up to July I. But of the negroes who were scattered, a few examples would show their e-indition. The following were the statistics of seven plantations near his own: On one of 102 negroes, 34 had died up to January 1; one of 350, only n-mile from his own place, lost 152 by deaths; one of 447 lost 52; one of 81 lost 27; one of 250 lost 78. There must be some change, the negroes are dying out so fast. The system hitherto tried is a fidure. On one plantation a Northern superintendent, a Methodist minister, had not been among his negrees Northern superintendent, a memora-minister, had not been among his negrees but two or three times in a whole season, and they were reduced to a deplor-able condition by his neglect. Mr. Klug would have some system by which able condition by his neglect. Mr. Klug would have some system by which Northern men would be induced to go there, and employ negroes in families, on small plantations, a hundred acres and a few negro families to each estate. The negroes would work earnestly and faithfully under faithful, fatherly and kindly care. A Northern mun could obtain a profit of six or seven hundred dollars on each laborer. In answer to a question.

In answer to a question, Mr. King said he had thought perhaps the condition of the negro in Savannah was worse than elsewhere, because they tlocked largely to the city, and there was no work for them. They were gregarions, and they loved each other's society. Their idea was to work whenever they pleased, preterring odd jobs to permanent employment. Crops and plantations required continuous work. Connecticut, in her election yesterday, refused the right of suffrage to the colore I people within her limits. The oldest of her citizens who went to the polls may live to regret that act of short-sightedness and injustice. She has committed wrong from jure love of it, or nobody will pretend that the decision would, either one way or the other, particularly affect the political character of the State, so har as vuces are concerned. About this time Wirtz ordered a sutler to leave the stockade for extortion and told the men to help themselves, reserving the vegetables for the sick. Wirtz told him when the camp was organized provisions would be more alumdant and regular. Wirtz also increased the rations and supply of wood. Partles were permitted to go outside and out and bring in wood nuder gnard, and such as had no blantacts were allowed to gather pine. He never heard of Wirtz shooting a man. He had heard him corse men. The winess confounded the statements of Reyvolas about stoves and trading places.

A brief session of the Cabinet was held. ness containing the statements of Rey-nolfs about stoves and trading places, salt was smuggled inside the stockade by bakers throwing it over the wall at light in bags for sutlers. Mr. Schade here interfered. He said that he found that the New York Daily was a loval paper, and did not know why it should be called disloyal.

Col. Chipman replied that he was very well aware why Mr. Schade did not see it.

Schade and Baker objected to the way the examination of their witnesses was conflucted.

Col. Chipman explained his course. The court did not question the objection of the baily News, twice in his office. He went to him to make a correction in his letter. He did not knew how he came to be subpensed.
